We're pleased to announce that the 75,000 acre Collins Lakeview Forest, with 47,500 acres in Lake County, Oregon and 27,500 acres in Modoc County, California, has recently been certified as a "Well-managed Forest" from Scientific Certification Systems (SCS) under the strict guidelines of the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC).

The 47,500 acres in Lake County is the largest block of forestland to be certified in Oregon, and it received the highest designation that can be given by SCS. The Lakeview program results in the certification of all the major lands under Collins ownership. The other properties include the Collins Almanor Forest in California and Collins Pennsylvania Forest near Kane, Pennsylvania.
